

The modularized maintenance system and method of the invention provides a feedback control system in which the efficiency of the maintenance work is monitored and recorded. The method and system adjusts the maintenance system through the modification of strategies, methods and/or equipment.